COURSE OBJECTIVE

The objective of this course is to provide students with practical exposure to the legal system through clinical legal activities and case-based learning. It aims to develop professional competencies in legal research, case analysis, legal drafting, advocacy, client counselling, negotiation, and problem-solving. The course seeks to enhance students' understanding of the functioning of courts, legal institutions, and justice delivery mechanisms through fieldwork, legal aid programmes, and community engagement activities.

The course further intends to strengthen analytical and critical thinking abilities by examining landmark judgments, contemporary legal issues, and socio-legal problems through case studies. It aims to promote awareness of access to justice, legal rights, professional ethics, and social responsibility. Additionally, the course encourages students to apply legal principles to real-life situations and develop practical skills necessary for effective legal practice, judicial services, legal research, public policy, and academic pursuits.

COURSE CONTENTS

Clinical Legal Activities and Case Study is an important component of legal education that combines practical training with analytical learning. It is designed to provide students with experiential knowledge of the legal system by enabling them to apply theoretical concepts to real-life legal situations. The subject focuses on developing professional skills through active participation in legal aid programmes, legal literacy campaigns, court observations, client counselling, legal drafting, mediation exercises, fieldwork, and community outreach activities.

UNIT 1 INTRODUCTION

The case study component encourages students to critically examine landmark judicial decisions, contemporary legal disputes, and emerging socio-legal issues. Through systematic analysis of cases, students learn to identify legal principles, interpret statutes, evaluate judicial reasoning, and assess the practical implications of legal rules. Case studies also promote critical thinking, analytical reasoning, and problem-solving abilities essential for legal practice and academic research.

Clinical Legal Activities provide students with direct exposure to courts, Police stations, legal institutions, justice delivery mechanisms, and community legal services. Such activities help them understand the practical operation of law, access to justice, legal rights, and the role of legal professionals in society. Participation in legal aid and awareness programmes further develops social responsibility and commitment to public service.

The subject also enhances legal research, advocacy, communication, negotiation, and professional ethics. By integrating practical experience with case-based learning, Clinical Legal Activities and Case Study bridge the gap between legal theory and practice and prepare students for careers in advocacy, judiciary, legal consultancy, policymaking, legal research, academia, and other fields of the legal profession.

	Concept and Development of Human Rights
NAME OF COURSE	SUBJECT TYPE	COURSE CODE	CREDIT	EXTERNAL MARKS	EXAM HOURS

COURSE OBJECTIVE

Protection of Human Rights became an important issue after the Second World War and after the acceptance of Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The growth of Human Rights Law and jurisprudence thereafter was spontaneous and continuous. The changes in the global scenario bring new concept of Human Rights protection against violation. In one sense, Human Rights can be said as the rights which the nature has endowed with human beings. However, they are not mere privileges given to the subjects by the ruler but are liberties permitted to the 'citizens' in a democracy. Manifestly a law that violates human rights is no law at all. Probably this perspective may give an impression that human rights are not different from natural rights envisaged by the natural law school. Although Indian polity waited for more than one score and five years for adoption of Fundamental Duties in the Constitution, it is beyond doubt that every human being has responsibilities and obligation not only towards the other fellow beings, but also towards the society at large. Only when a society is aware of this right-duty relationship can there be any meaning to human rights. This course is intended to highlight the concept and development of human rights, their evolution and their importance in our society.

LL.M (Business Group)	THEORY	LLMCSEL202	06	100	03:00

COURSE OBJECTIVE

Human rights are the rights of all human beings. Violation of these rights is human rights violations. Due to frequent violations to particular groups in disadvantageous positions, new categories of human rights have emerged. These groups are of people such as women, children, prisoners and SC/ST. Violation of human rights of these groups is of great concern of every nation today. The officials of the state like the police force commit such violations. This is only an illustration. There are several other categories of violations. A reading of fundamental rights and duties in the Constitution of India reveals that they constitute the human rights charter in India. The judiciary, the major protective and enforcement machinery, is very active in protecting human rights. Judicial activism in this field has added new dimensions to human rights jurisprudence. There are a number of cases where courts apply the provisions of the international conventions to fill the gaps in legislation. The apex court has also ventured to apply international convention even where there was no legislation in the area. Thus, the judiciary has been directly implementing international conventions at the national level. This course aims at familiarizing students with the judicial activism in protecting human rights and enables them to evaluate the adequacy of the methods of enforcement.

COURSE OBJECTIVE

The objective of this course is to develop teaching competencies and research skills among students for effective participation in legal academia and scholarly activities. It aims to provide an understanding of modern teaching methodologies, lesson planning, classroom management, and communication techniques used in legal education. The course seeks to enhance students' abilities in legal research, academic writing, citation practices, and research methodology. It further intends to familiarize students with the process of preparing, presenting, and publishing research papers in academic journals and other scholarly platforms. The course also aims to promote critical thinking, analytical reasoning, and ethical standards in teaching and research. Additionally, it prepares students for careers in legal education, research institutions, policy analysis, and academic publication by fostering professional excellence and scholarly engagement.

COURSE CONTENT

UNIT 1 CLASSROOM TEACHING (Marks 50)

A topic is assigned to the student in advance. He/She is required to handle a class for 60 minutes. Where LL.B. programme co-exists with LL.M. programme, the students may be asked to teach the LL.B./LL.M students. They can select any of the methods of teaching. In legal education practical, the LL.M. students are evaluate by a team of Faculty members or experts.

A topic shall be assigned to each student in advance, and the student shall be required to deliver a teaching session of 60 minutes on the assigned topic. The teaching session may be conducted for LL.M. students of the Department of Law, Kachchh University, or for LL.B students of any Law College affiliated with Kachchh University, as may be decided by the Head of the Department. The Head of the Department shall have the discretion to determine the appropriate class, institution, and venue for conducting the teaching exercise, taking into consideration the academic requirements and administrative convenience. Students may adopt any appropriate teaching method or pedagogical technique for conducting the session. The performance of the LL.M. students in the Legal Education Practical shall be evaluated by a committee comprising faculty members and/or subject experts, as determined by the Department.

UNIT 2 RESEARCH PUBLICATION (Marks 50)

Each LL.M. student shall be required to prepare a Research Paper in accordance with the student's approved area of specialisation.

The student shall submit a proposed research title in advance to the Committee constituted by the Head of the Department of Law, Kachchh University for consideration and approval. The Committee shall examine the relevance, originality, scope, feasibility, and academic merit of the proposed topic and may approve, modify, or require revision of the proposed title. The student shall proceed with the preparation of the Research Paper only after obtaining approval of the Committee.

The Research Paper shall be prepared in accordance with accepted standards of legal research and academic writing and shall ordinarily include an appropriate title, abstract, keywords, introduction, research objectives or questions, methodology, substantive analysis, findings, conclusion, and suggestions, wherever applicable. The paper shall be properly supported by relevant authorities and sources and shall follow the citation and referencing style prescribed by the Department.

The Research Paper shall be the original and unpublished work of the student and shall not have been simultaneously submitted or published elsewhere. The student shall comply with the applicable institutional and academic-integrity requirements relating to plagiarism, proper attribution, copyright, and ethical use of sources. Where applicable, a similarity/plagiarism report and declaration of originality shall be submitted along with the final manuscript. The student shall also comply with the journal's requirements concerning disclosure of the use of artificial intelligence or other research-assistance tools, where such disclosure is required.

After completion and internal evaluation, the Department shall determine the appropriate mode of publication. The Research Paper may be submitted individually by the student to a suitable peer-reviewed legal journal, or the Department may, subject to the approval of the competent authority, facilitate publication of selected Research Papers in an appropriate peer-reviewed journal or as a compiled edited research volume carrying an ISBN. The final mode, publisher/journal, editorial process, and publication arrangement shall be determined by the Department in accordance with academic quality, institutional requirements, and availability of appropriate publication opportunities.

Where publication in a peer-reviewed journal is undertaken, the manuscript shall be subject to the review and editorial requirements of the concerned journal. Students shall incorporate reasonable corrections and revisions suggested by the Department, editorial board, or peer reviewers before final publication. Publication shall be subject to acceptance by the concerned journal or publisher and shall not be treated as guaranteed merely on submission.

The Head of the Department shall have the authority to constitute a Research Publication Committee, prescribe timelines and procedural requirements, allocate or approve research topics, determine the mode of publication, and issue such academic and administrative directions as may be necessary for the effective implementation of this Unit.

Note:

1. The paper “Classroom Teaching and Research Publication” shall carry 100 marks, comprising 50 marks for Classroom Teaching and 50 marks for Research Publication.
2. Participation in the prescribed Classroom Teaching activities and completion of the Research Publication shall be compulsory for all students.
3. To pass the paper, a student shall be required to secure a minimum of 25 marks out of 50 in each component, i.e., 25 marks in Classroom Teaching and 25 marks in Research Publication.
4. A student who fails to secure the minimum 25 marks in either component shall be deemed to have failed the entire paper, irrespective of the total marks secured in the two components.
5. Such a student shall be required to appear for the respective component(s) in the subsequent examination/assessment as prescribed by the University. The marks obtained in the two components shall be considered together, and the student shall be required to secure a minimum aggregate of 50 marks out of 100, subject to the requirement of securing at least 25 marks in each component.
6. Students shall undertake the prescribed Classroom Teaching activities and complete the Research Publication in accordance with the guidelines, academic requirements, and schedule prescribed by the Department.
